

capybara facts

information report

[INTRODUCTION]

Capybara have heavy, barrel-shaped body which sits on relatively squat legs, shorter in front than the back. Their brown fur is coarse and sparse enough to reveal the gray skin beneath it. Capybara have reveal partially webbed feet, Which help to propel them through the water or swampy areas.

[HABITAT]

Capybara habitat are tropical land and they can sink to the bottom and they can breath for 8 minutes in the water. They are from lot of countries Paraguay, Northeast Argentina, Peru, Brazil, Colombia, Venezuela, Guyana, South America, Panama and Uruthey they sleep in the water. Capybara are near lakes, rivers, swamp, marshes and tropical rivers.

[LIFE CYCLE/BABIES/LIFE EXPECTANCY]

They can live in the wild for up to 7 years. Having a life span of 7 years to 10 years in the wild, they live for about 12 years when they are kept in the zoos or bred in captivity. If your wondering how many does a females Capybara give birth well. After 5-month gestation period, the females Capybara will give birth to four to five babies. After a few days, when the babies join the rest of the group, they are communally nursed by all the females.

[EATING/FOOD]

What does capybara eat well they eat grass, they chew on bone, hard thing, grains, melons, reeds, squashes, bark, tubers and sugar cane they eat their own poo.

[PREDATORS AND ENVIRONMENTAL DANGER]

Capybara predators and environmental danger. They move in large groups to stay safe. Caimans, Anacondas, Jaguars, Crocodile, large snakes, Pumas and Ocelots are Capybara predator. Plunging underwater for up to five minutes at a time. Provide value for ecosystem as part of food chains.

[PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION]

Capybara physical description Capybara has webbed feet and every grown teeth. The male Capybara has a bump behind the nose. Fun fact did you know that Capybara are the biggest rodent on earth. Capybara can run up to 35 kph go get coconut because Capybara skin feels like a coconut. They have no guard hair their fur is easy to dry in the sun. They have short legs and small ears and almost no tail. Baby Capybara weight is 2-3 pounds average weight of an adult male Capybara is 70 to 120 pounds. However some individuals can weight as much as 150 pounds or more! Females tend smaller than males, with adult females generally weighting between 50 to 112 pounds.

CONCLUSION

Conclusion male Capybara has a bump behind the nose. Capybara are from a lot of countries. Capybara live near water. They mainly eat grass. Did you know that they look like a large rodent? Female Capybara can give birth to four to five babies. Baby Capybara can weight up to 2-3 pounds. Capybara have short legs and small ears and almost no tali.

